Our man in the countryside

For ten years Glyn Evans (pictured below) has been strengthening links between the Church and rural society through his work as rural chaplain to the Dorchester Episcopal Area. Here he writes about his additional responsibilities as the Diocese's new Rural and Regional Officer

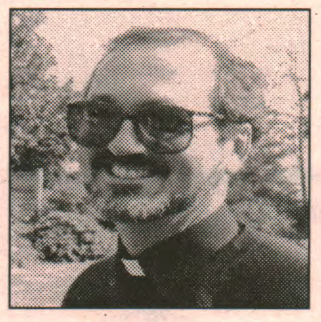
Maintaining and strengthening the links between the Church and rural society, and helping the rural Church to engage with rural issues, will continue to be the main priority of my work. However, in future I will also help, support and widen the work of my fellow rural chaplains in the Buckingham and Reading Episcopal Areas thus working on rural and agricultural concerns across the Oxford Diocese.

My new brief also includes developing Church issues relating to tourism. One of the projects I have in mind is to establish a 'Faith in Tourism Group'. I am also working with some of the parishes mentioned in Simon Jenkins' recent book



England's Thousand Best Churches on their ministry to visitors.

The 'regional' side of the job acknowledges the growing importance of regionalism in this country – currently an economic process, there are signs that the Government plans to establish regional assemblies in England with similar powers to the Welsh Assembly. We shall see! In the meantime my task is to keep the Diocese informed of developments at the South East Region.

We have already established a South East Region rural churches group to look at rural deprivation and how churches response to it across the region. Our first conference is being held in Woking on 15 June with representatives from this Diocese in attendance.

Estonian choir to sing in Littlemore

The Parish Church of St Mary the Virgin and St Nicholas, Littlemore in Oxford will be the venue for a concert by the remarkable St Michael's Boys Choir from Tallinn in Estonia on 15 June at 7pm. Their repertoire spans liturgical and folk music from over a thousand years. Much of the Estonian musical literature was hidden away in museums during the Soviet occupation of Estonia and is now being rediscovered by this choir. Entrance is free but there will be a collection to cover expenses. The concert is jointly organised by the Estonian Embassy and Bernhard Schunemann, Priest in charge of Littlemore. Details 01865 437720.

Adopt a cop?

On 1 June we are asked to join the first National Day of Prayer for the Police Service. Thames Valley Police and the Oxford Diocese are also encouraging churches to pray for those who work in police stations on a more regular basis through a new 'Adopt a Cop' scheme.

Churches who join the scheme commit themselves to adopting in prayer all those who work at their local police station. A co-ordinator from the station, usually a member of the Christian Police Association, will supply information for prayer on a regular basis whether high profile law and order situations or personal needs of individuals.

The idea originated in Brixton where 30 churches now pray for the police service.

MU consider ethics of fertilisation

The ethics of human fertilisation was the important subject of a recent discussion at an open meeting of Witney's Mothers' Union.

The evening was organised by the Revd Jeremy Trigg, a member of the Hull IVF Unit advisory panel. Various methods of in vitro fertilisation were explained and small groups worked through some case studies, following the process carried out by the advisory panel.

It was explained that one of the criteria for the use of human fertilisation is 'that a woman shall not be provided with treatment services unless account has been taken of the welfare of any child who may be born as a result of the treatment (including the need of that child for a father) and of any other child affected by the birth'.

'Many questions arose,' says Joan Baron, leader of the Witney Deanery MU, 'particularly when we considered the Gospel values of family life and good parenting – that of love, stability and wider family support.'

Diocesan cricket

The Diocesan cricket team will vigorously defend their 1999 Church Times Cup victory. The first Cup fixture is on 5 June at Wolverhampton when they meet Lichfield Diocese. On 12 June they play Birmingham and on 19 June, Southwell. They also have friendly matches against Bicester and North Oxford on 22 June and against the Church Commissioners on 27 June. The Cup final is on 14 September. For all details: Ed Newell on 01865 208221.

News in brief

A life on the ocean wave

The Missions to Seamen changed its name to The Mission to Seafarers at a service of blessing and rededication in Westminster Abbey in April. The mission is setting aside 9 July as Sea Sunday, a chance for churches to pray for seafarers and their families. Resources are available from Mission to Seafarers, St Michael Paternoster Royal, College Hill, London EC4R 2RL, tel 020 7248 5202.

Fuel for the GM debate

The methods by which our food is produced have been increasingly the subject of ethical and practical discussion. To this is now added the debate over the question of genetic modification of our food sources.

A vital aspect of the debate is the viability or otherwise of non-chemical and unmodified farming methods. In view of this, Applied Rural Alternatives, an independent educational group of Christians, have arranged some guided tours to organic farms, gardens and holdings to give concerned people a chance to see and ask questions. The next visit is to the Hardwick Organic market Garden, near Pangbourne on the afternoon of 10 June.

Booking is essential. Ring David Stafford on 0118 962 7797.

Saints near and far

St Frideswide, patroness of the Oxford Diocese, is one of 25 saints to be represented in flowers at Reading's 'Flower Festival 2000' from 30 June - 2 July. The event, at All Saints' Downshire Square, will draw on the imagination and skills of a number of Reading churches. Greyfriars is responsible for a St George display in the porch. St Peter is being remembered in an arrangement by St Bartholomew's, Arborfield while Grange United Reformed Church will take care of St Frideswide. The weekend of celebration also includes a choral concert and the ordination to the priesthood of Fr Stuart Richards by the Bishop of Reading on Saturday, 1 July.

Ring 0118 957 2000 for details.

The fight for St Augustine's School continues

The Roman Catholic Archbishop of Birmingham, the Most Revd Vincent Nichols, has concluded that St Augustine's Joint Roman Catholic/ Church of England Upper School should become a Catholic Secondary School as part of the reorganisation of Oxford schools currently planned by Oxfordshire County Council.

The Archbishop's decision was announced on 10 May. It is based on the assumption that, on the statistical evidence of the numbers of Catholic baptisms in and outside Oxford, the creation of a Catholic secondary school is justified. The Church of England is doubtful about this conclusion.

The school's head teacher, Elisabeth Gilpin, said she was deeply saddened by the response of the Roman Catholic Archdiocese of Birmingham. 'I believe that the start of a new millennium should be a time for Christians to act together on Christ's last prayer for his followers: May they all be one.'

However, the fight to keep the joint school goes on. The Bishop of Oxford has expressed his appreciation of the time and attention given by Archbishop Nichols to the question. While respecting the integrity of his decision, he has voiced his 'bitter' disappointment at the conclusion and remains committed to the pupils, staff and governors of the school.

The governing body of St Augustine's passed a resolution following Archbishop Nichols' conclusion in which they said: 'Having read the Archbishop's statement, the governing body remains strongly in favour of the continuation of St Augustine's as a joint Roman Catholic and Church of England school in the two- or three-tier system.' They have set up a sub-committee under the chairmanship of Joan Townsend to take this commitment forward.

Speaking to The DOOR, the Oxford Diocesan Director of Education, Canon Tony Williamson, said: 'The Bishop of Oxford and the Diocesan Board of Education remain committed to the continuation of the joint school. It is also my view that Oxfordshire County Councillors do not appear minded to change their view that the school should be retained as a joint school'.

Girl band promotes sport events for poor countries

Shine, an up-and-coming Christian band from Milton Keynes, is helping a national campaign to raise money for children in the world's poorest countries. They took part in the 'Game of Two Halves' tour, organised by Tearfund with Oxford-based Christians in Sport and the youth agency Viz-A-Viz, which encourages young people to put on sponsored sports events. The four singers (left to right), Loretta Andrews, Hanne Pettersen, Natasha Andrews and Nicola Rodgers, are shown with youngsters from London during the tour. Last summer about £40,000 was raised through Game of Two Halves. A pack for schools and youth clubs is available from Tearfund: 020 8977 6061; www.go2h.org Photograph: Jim Loring/Tearfund

Talk on same-sex relationships

A 40-minute talk on same-sex relationships has been recorded by the Bishop of Oxford, who is chairman of the House of Bishops' Working Party on Human Sexuality. It outlines the various arguments and sets out the most recent thinking in the Church of England. The talk, written for deanery study groups, is suitable for groups or individuals who want to listen to a fair and careful presentation of this complex and diverse issue. The audio CD is available from Oxford Diocesan Publications Ltd at Diocesan Church House, £4.50 inc. VAT, postage and packing. Send a cheque payable to ODPUBS. The full text of the talk is available free on the Diocesan web site: www.oxford.anglican.org.

Greenbelt's new head

Jude Levermore, a licensed lay minister from Ducklington near Witney in Oxfordshire, is the new chairman of Greenbelt, the annual Christian arts festival. She takes over from Glasgow-based Dot Reid as the festival moves back to the Bank Holiday weekend (25-28 August) on its popular new site at Cheltenham race course.

Mother of three children, Jude is also a school counsellor and a youth worker who trained with Oxford Youth Works. 'As a youth worker, I am particularly pleased that this year we've seen an incredible rise in the number of young people booking in for the festival. For the last 27 years, Greenbelt has been a landmark event in many young people's lives, offering a non-stop weekend of stimulating entertainment, talk and spiritual expression.'

Three years ago Jude Levermore was The DOOR's 'God in the Life of' subject and said: 'I like working with young people - they talk about their faith openly. They haven't read the books, they don't know the 'right' answers, so the answers they give are heartfelt and quite often more God-like.'

Tickets for Greenbelt are available from 0207374 2760 or from the website www.greenbelt.org.uk

Bishop gives support for Rover

The new Rover 75 is a superb car which deserves to sell well here and overseas, said the Bishop of Oxford in the House of Lords on 9 May. Questioning the Government about the future position of workers at the Cowley plant after the Phoenix takeover, he told the Minister, Baron McIntosh of Haringey, that he was concerned that the production of the Rover 75 would be switched from Cowley to Longbridge.

In reply the Minister assured Bishop Richard that the new Mini would be built at Cowley and that there would be no job losses there. The Bishop himself took delivery of a Rover 75 in December 1999.

PACT invests in future of parents and children

Parents and Children Together (The Oxford Diocesan Council for Social Work) have been awarded an Investors in People status in recognition of their good working practices, particularly for the way they treat and train their staff. They will receive the award on 12 July.

The news was given by chairman Peter Teague at PACT's annual general meeting at Englefield House near Reading in May. He also announced that PACT would move to larger modern offices in Reading at the end of May. In several ways the year had been a pilgrimage, said PACT's director, Yvette Gayford. Despite having to cope with many changes at government and local authority level, 31 children had been placed in new families in 1999.

Afterwards Peter Wilson, Director of Young Minds, gave the PACT annual lecture on mental health and children. Research, he said, had shown that of 500 children born in 1964 who had had to cope with adverse problems, two out of three had developed mental health problems. Some remained stable against all the odds but we paid little attention to how they coped. It seemed that the most significant factor for them was an unequivocal attachment to one person whom they could trust. Parents needed to be a consistent presence for their child and they needed support from agencies like PACT.

From 31 May PACT's address will be: 7 Southern Court, South Street, Reading RG1 4QS, telephone 0118 938 7600.

Asian Christians celebrate

At their largest ever gathering, over 2,000 British Asian Christians came together in Buckinghamshire last month for worship, seminars and other activities. Asia Celebrates 2000, organised by the Alliance of Asian Christians, was held in a marquee in the grounds of the WEC International headquarters at Bulstrode Park, Gerrards Cross. Prayers were said in Urdu, Gujarati, Hindi, Punjabi and English especially for churches in Asian countries where Christians are persecuted. Those present included London mayoral candidate Raj Gidoomal, rap musican Raj Kaul and Christian songwriter Subhash Gill. Also there was The Times correspondent Ruth Gledhill, who included the event in her regular 'Five-star guide' to services. The delicious supper afterwards was given a maximum of five stars.

GORDON LIMMER (above, right) has retired from bell-ringing just before his 91st birthday. He has been ringing for 75 years in Burnham, Bucks but is no longer able to climb the 33 tower steps. He joined the bell ringers in 1925 when his voice broke and he could not sing in the choir. He is shown above on 1 January 2000, when he was one of 11 adults who rang the bells at noon. They were joined by children aged between five and nine who have been learning to ring the sanctus bell: Isaac Price (in the picture), Charlotte Annetts, David Dainty and Stephen Greenham.

WEAR A GREEN ribbon on Rogation Sunday, 28 May, to highlight the farming crisis and to express support for farmers. The ribbon was included with worship packs sent to parishes in the Diocese. Rogation Sunday has also been designated a day of prayer for farmers. The commuting Christian

Chris Neal, the Diocese's Evangelisation Officer, looks at the important topic of relating our faith and our work

In the evangelisation process, and especially in the Focus Conferences earlier this year, two key issues kept emerging: leadership and relating faith and work. I will address the second of these this month, and look at leadership next. Faith and work is a huge area, but it may be helpful to highlight one or two principles.

One of our church members, a 28-year-old social worker, once said, 'For the first time in my Christian life I am being challenged to relate my faith to my work.' This staggered me because she had been a member of the Church since childhood, involved in the Christian scene at university, and eager to learn and grow as a disciple. I suspect that her mindset is echoed in congregations across the country. Why? Most of us have inherited an image of Church that speaks of special things, said and done by special people, in special places, on a special day. While I would not want to deny the importance of gathering on a Sunday, it has created a 'commuter' mentality. Christians gather in church on Sunday and then 'commute' back into the rest of life for the rest of the week and sometimes find it hard to make a connection between the two worlds.

Compartments

This commuter mentality is often exacerbated by the mindset of church leadership. Maintaining church life becomes so absorbing that it can become an end in itself and church becomes a self-contained compartment in the totality of life.

A vicar in a Kent commuter town spent the first six weeks of his sabbatical travelling to London with church members and sharing their day in their place of work. Afterwards he told his PCC that 95% of what they did in church was irrelevant to the majority of church members in their working lives.

Evangelisation challenges us to break out of the compartmentalisation of life, and to encourage each other to work out the connection between faith, work and indeed the whole of life. It also lays a responsibility on church leaders to ensure that our gatherings for worship and teaching are equipping people for the whole of life.

Seeing the whole

Perhaps we will begin to see life in a whole way as we continue to reflect on the person and purpose of God as he has shown himself in Jesus Christ. In Jesus, God declared his love for the whole of creation, and in his ministry Jesus continually challenged the narrowness and compartmentalisation of so much religion. He was prepared to cross every boundary and expressed kingdom principles in every area of life. Jesus never 'commuted' from the religious to the secular. For him life was whole, because the whole of life was a gift from, and of importance to, his Father.

Bishop Anthony looks back...

A QUIET AND PASTORAL BISHOP was how one columnist described Anthony Russell on hearing the news that he is to be the next Bishop of Ely. But is that to underestimate this modest courteous man? His 12 years as Bishop of Dorchester have marked a turning point for rural Oxfordshire. His interests and expertise range from farming issues and the poetry of George Herbert to social concerns such as low cost housing and mental health in rural areas

I was on a tractor on the morning of the day that I went to Cuddesdon in the afternoon. So I really did go straight from the seat of a tractor into theological college.

I come from a Christian family stretching back over generations of farmer church wardens although I don't think there has ever been a priest before. We had a farm in Latimer just in this Diocese on the Hertfordshire border.

It is quite extraordinary to be where I am and to have always lived in villages of under 300 people. My religious formation took place in village churches. That was what nurtured me and that was where I expected that my ministry would be exercised. At an early stage I felt strongly the sense of being called into the life of the Church.

I saw myself specialising in ministering in rural parishes. My first curacy was in the Hillsborough group of parishes in the Diocese of Norwich 20 miles from Ely. There were about 1400 people in ten villages spread over 75 square miles in some of the least densely populated parts of England.

Then I moved to Warwickshire to be the incumbent of three very small villages just south of Stratford-on-Avon but at the same time I was first the chaplain and then the Director of the Arthur Rank Centre at the National Agricultural Centre at Stoneleigh. This was the unit that dealt with the people of the countryside. I didn't remotely aspire to becoming a bishop. I was very happily engaged in a whole range of activities. Stoneleigh is quite a remarkable place to work at. If you stand still long enough the whole of the rural world passes you by. We were breaking new ground in areas of affordable and low cost housing and employment. About the last thing I did when I was there was to begin all the work on stress and suicide in the farming community.

One of the things I was particularly concerned with when I became Bishop of Dorchester in 1988 was to raise the morale and profile of the Dorchester Area. The Bishop of Dorchester up until my immediate predecessor was a canon of Christ Church who looked after educational matters but didn't look after Oxfordshire which only become a formal Area in 1984. It is not always appreciated that 50 per cent of the settlements in Oxfordshire have fewer than 500 people. So inevitably the Dorchester Area was less well established in people's minds and for the people of north and west Oxfordshire especially it seemed to be the forgotten part of the Oxford Diocese. Addressing that was an important part of the early stages of my ministry here and was also the point of my living in Sibford Ferris.

Rural ministry has changed considerably since I became Bishop of Dorchester. Some years ago many of the people who were looking at the problems of the countryside regarded the Church as one of the causes of the problems. That has now changed and a wide group of partnership organisations, who are concerned with the future of the countryside, now see the Church as a very active and helpful partner in relating to the community and to the social issues of rural areas.

The second area of great change has been the restructuring of the Church in the countryside. Early on in my time here, we produced a paper called 'The Future of Our Past', which was based on the assumptions that there would be larger primary pastoral units, each with a ministry team in which non-stipendiary clergy would play an increasingly significant role. That has all happened in Oxfordshire during the last 12 years and my ten years as chairman of the governing body of first the Oxford Ministry Course and then the St Alban's and Oxford Ministry Course brought me very close to all of that.

I feel more optimistic than when I came about the Church in the countryside. First of all I think we are getting to grips with the real issues in a way that perhaps the Church hadn't before when it was slightly colluding in a rather romantic image of the countryside. Secondly I think that the old status that attached to rural ministry has completely disappeared and churches stand or fall by how active they are and how they are perceived by the people in the community.

To work your way into the job of being a priest anywhere takes time. The fact that I have been here 12 years means that I have got to know a huge number of people in my Area. If anything happens I know to whom to speak and I shall miss that. I shall also miss Dorchester Abbey. It is actually where my wife and I were married and I draw a lot of spiritual strength from the memory of Birinus there.

I shall also miss the very good relationships that there are between people in this Diocese. We sometimes underestimate how well the Oxford Diocese works as a diocese partly because of the leadership at the top but partly because there are assumptions in this Diocese that things are going to work and happen.

It is a happy man that can say he has done what he set out to do and I think I am a happy man. I set off imagining that I would spend a life ministering in rural areas and that is actually what I have been able to do and I believe that is what I have been called to do.

My wife has had a considerable role here and will be remembered especially for her hospitality. As a former assistant to the Welfare Officer of the Red Cross in Oxfordshire she probably knows Oxfordshire and its people better than I do. I would like to be remembered not for being a great public figure but as someone who was available around the parishes, someone to whom people could turn.

You find out a lot about yourself when you are appointed to another job. Ruth Gledhill, The Times religious affairs correspondent, recently wrote about me as 'a quiet and pastoral bishop'. That is a great compliment in this day and age and that is how I would like to be remembered.

The farmers' bishop

He came when the north of the Diocese was settled in a rusticating stupor and proceeded to rouse us and now we are an Area proud to exist. He speaks the language of the country dweller and always has time to listen and care. We will remember splendid sermons on George Herbert and the exemplary way of ending a meeting on time, leaving no one feeling they had not had their say. We will also be eternally grateful to Sheila for her quiet support and hospitality. Ely's gain is our loss. We wish them well.
Elizabeth Higgs, farmer, churchwarden, deanery lay chairman

Bishop Anthony – the farmer's bishop – a man with a deep understanding of the countryside and its problems. He has done so much for the farming community. Our loss is Ely's gain. God bless you Anthony.
George Fenemore
farmer and churchwarden

We'll miss his monthly visits – his day to read, ponder, pray. Our father in God – unassuming, caring, affirming, a listening ear and wise, shepherd's crook, measured pace. Our brother in Christ – humble, courteous, gentle humour, sharp wit, polished brogues, muddy boots. He had an amazing breadth and depth of knowledge, lightly worn.
Brother Stuart OSB,
Burford Priory

Bishop Anthony has been a great support to Dorchester Abbey and the annual St Birinus Pilgrimage (never missing the 12-mile walk from Blewbury to Dorchester!). The local clergy will miss his care and Sheila's generous hospitality.
John Crowe
Rector of Dorchester

Not every rural chaplain gets to work with a Bishop who is knowledgeable about rural issues. We often attended meetings together. Sometimes I would deputise for him – and he would deputise for me too!! I have valued Bishop Anthony's skill and knowledge, support and encouragement, and will miss our close working relationship.
Glyn Evans, Diocesan Rural and Regional Officer

MEDINA Valley Outdoor Education Centre in Newport, Isle of Wight was founded in 1963 as the Christian Sailing Centre and initially provided holidays along Christian conference centre lines with Bible teaching from guest speakers alongside dinghy sailing or cruising holiday programmes.

The work expanded steadily to include field studies, landscape painting and drawing and personal development. Then in 1977 the field studies and junior education work began to develop and today over 2000 students visit every year from curriculum-based courses to A-level and beyond.

This schools ministry is exciting and immensely challenging. Schools know they are coming to a Christian foundation and young scientists and geographers studying environmental issues often ask questions about God's world and creation.

Our residential hosts are Ruth and Sean Luther, Sean was a deputy headmaster for many years and Ruth was a special needs teacher. They give a 'Morning Thought' each day at breakfast and are available in the evenings to answer questions and talk when students are relaxing after classwork. With junior groups, the couple are often involved in helping the school staff provide evening programmes that compliment the day's activities.

Whereas in the early days, most of our visitors were Christians today's guests are from all faiths or none. Our hope is that the centre not only continues to develop as a resource for education, but also continues to communicate practical Christian values and faith.

Medina Valley is an independent registered charity. For more information, contact them at Medina Valley Centre, Dodnor Lane, Newport, Isle of Wight PO30 5TE or e-mail info@medinavalley centre.org.uk. 01983 522195

New ordinands

Jonathan Bicknell
Chesham Bois
I'm moving 'over the border' from Berkhamsted (St Alban's Diocese) to Chesham Bois, Bucks. For seven happy years I was parish youth worker in Berkhamstead and would reiterate the honour of being called to serve God and his people. My family (my wife Joanna, Charlie, 7, and Hope, 4) are looking forward to seeing me trade in jeans and T-shirt for priestly robes!

Rosemary Bragg
Maidenhead
I will be serving in the parish of All Saints, Boyne Hill, Maidenhead, where I have been Reader since 1997. I qualified as a pharmacist and with my husband Jim lived in Belgium for 11 years. I worked in the pharmaceutical industry in Regulatory Affairs for nearly 20 years before retiring last September, a few days before commencing a one-year ministry course at St Stephen's House.

Sarah Coakley Littlemore
I am Mallinckrodt Professor of Divinity at Harvard University where I am engaged in training men and women for the ministry in an ecumenical context. I previously taught at Oriel College, Oxford and at Lancaster University. My family and I still live part of each year in Oxford where one of our two daughters is a student at New College.

Anne Faulkner Aylesbury
I have been Parish Development Adviser in the Archdeaconry of Buckingham for almost 12 years. As the main focus of my ministry has been, and will continue to be, with the churches of Bucks, my work base is in my home in Aylesbury, where my husband Peter is Team Vicar. I shall be licensed to the Parish of Aylesbury with Bierton and Hulcott where I shall also minister.

Stuart Gay Sunningdale
I am a 'Man of Kent', and a proud Gillingham FC supporter, although Carol and I have lived away from Kent since we were married. Carol is a secondary school teacher, we do not have children (not our choice) and we have been married four years, having known each other since our teens. We are very much looking forward to serving the parish of Holy Trinity, Sunningdale, Berks.

Anthea Griggs Sunningdale
I trained as a secondary school teacher, taught in London and overseas, married in 1962, had two sons, returned to teaching in 1971, was widowed 1983. I graduated in Religious Studies from Edinburgh in 1986, since when I worked in residential posts until I retired as headmistress of St George's, Ascot in 1998. I was licensed as Reader in 1996.

Their future is ordained

The new deacons will be ordained at Christ Church Cathedral on 2 July at 10.30am. Please pray for them and for the priests being ordained on 1 and 2 July (see box bottom left) as they minister in our Diocese.

Harriet Harris
I have been training at St Stephen's House and in the new academic year shall return to my work as lecturer in theology at the University of Exeter. My husband Mark is also training for ordination. When not at theological college we go cycling, and hope soon to take on the Alps.

James Howson Cogges
I have lived most of my life in Weston Underwood, Bucks, and before ordination training in Cambridge served as a Reader in the Gate Group of parishes. I studied music at Huddersfield University and worked as a peripatetic brass teacher for the Milton Keynes Music Service for eight years. I am looking foward to serving in Cogges and South Leigh, Witney.

Alex Hughes Headington
After a theology degree in Oxford, I have been continuing my studies at Westcott House and will serve my title at Holy Trinty, Headington Quarry. I am married to Sarah and we have just celebrated our second wedding anniversary. Sarah works as a care assistant in residential homes for the elderly. We both enjoy reading contemporary English literature, foreign travel, walking and gardening.

Penny Joyce Oxford
Brought up in Dorset, I have spent most of my career in the teaching profession. In 1989 I became head of a first school in Chesham, and was there until called to ordained ministry in 1998. I have appreciated my training at Wycliffe Hall, where I was Common Room President. I am a very contented single person, enjoying travel and being with people. I will be joining St Clement's church in Oxford for my curacy.

Francis Orr-Ewing Oxford
I am known as Frog, and am married to Amy whom I met while we were both Oxford theology undergraduates. On finishing at Wycliffe Hall I will be Curate at St Aldate's, Oxford. I am interested in art, and am a keen painter, having exhibited in London, Bath and Oxford. I am also committed to the work of overseas missions and the plight of the suffering Church.

Angie Paterson Icknield

I will be working in Bladon with Woodstock.

In the spirit of Pentecost

FROM THE EDITOR

Pentecost this year promises to be the best for 2,000 years! In the Oxford Diocese alone at least 30,000 Christians will be involved in open- air events. From the Bucks County showground to market places, parks and village greens, Christians are coming out of their churches to witness and celebrate in their communities.

Details of some of the Pentecost events in this Diocese appear on pages 10 and 11. Each one is an ideal opportunity to take along a friend.

Three thousand people were converted in Jerusalem on the first day of Pentecost through the witness of a handful of believers. Who knows what will happen if we dare to do the same.

Clergy Appreciation Week (18 to 25 June) has been described by its sponsors, CARE for the Family, as a 'sort of Mother's Day for vicars'. The very idea may cause squirms of embarrassment back at the vicarage. However, its introduction suggests that some of us do take our clergy and their families for granted.

Three out of four clergy suffer a stress related illness at least once in their ministry. And is it any wonder? In our secular society they have lost status, morale and increasingly safety. We expect them to be always available, always good tempered and a sort of cross between a social worker and God. The miracle is that so many men and women continue to come forward for ordination.

Of course there is the occasional bad apple. But for the most part our clergy serve us better than we deserve. If we remembered to thank them more often they would probably serve us even better.

Why wait until 18 June? Thank your clergy now. If you can't do it face to face, write a letter. It could work wonders. In fact we may not need a Clergy Appreciation Week next year.

Jesus without the baggage

Less froth, more beer says Ivan Mann in this Pentecost reflection for the new millennium

ON THE DAY of Pentecost the believers were accused of being drunk! It's a good reflection of Pentecost. After all the emotions of the passion, death and resurrection of Christ Pentecost was a liberation and joy bubbled up – God's champagne being released over all who would believe – an ending and a beginning.

What was to come was the realisation of life in the spirit in the context of a life marked by persecution, martyrdom and amazing manifestations of God's grace in the most unexpected of people. The froth gave way to the beer, the apparent drunkenness to the grittiness of being led by the spirit in the way of Christ – into sharing his suffering and his glory.

There are lessons here for all who believe and who want to follow Christ into his future. Let me draw out four – spirituality, humanity, truth and substance.

Spirituality

In a recent book Rowan Williams has described spirituality as, 'the life of the believer, material, imaginative and desirous... a whole human life to be lived in the 'place' defined by Jesus' (An Introduction to Christian Spirituality, edited by Waller and Ward, SPCK, 1999). This is the spirituality which we see lived out in Paul, the living of a whole life by a person longing to know nothing but Christ. Spirituality is not about how we pray, or what spiritual experiences we can claim, but essentially about how we live and how God lives in us. Less froth, more beer... less books on spirituality, more prayer.

Humanity

Such an understanding demands that we take humanity seriously – ours and that of others. We have to face humanity as it is. If the twentieth century is to teach us anything then one lesson will be the cost of inhumanity. Those who believe that we are made in and still bear God's image, that we are temples of the Spirit, will approach other people with love, compassion and respect. We cannot hide behind God, behind religious talk, behind words that 'sound full of love, but only separate us from each other'. Nor can we afford to live in religious ghettos. The real task is to engage with the reality of the world and the reality of God. In so far as we do that the Church will grow. Once you work with the marginalised, the afflicted, the rejected, you soon discover your own poverty and need of God. There's no better way to learn to pray.

How much of what we lug around does Jesus really expect us to carry? Photo by courtesy of Scripture Union is from the Footprints Theatre's 1992 world tour.

Truth

The spirit that leads us into all truth demands that we address the real issues of the day and that we dare to listen to what God is saying through his prophets and through the events that surround us. It's been fascinating to see the public response to the National Gallery's 'Seeing Salvation' exhibition. Apparently 200,000 people have been to see it and the number of weekend visitors has set a new record. The Church Times (20 April) article is headed 'Record numbers want to see Jesus 'without baggage'. In a less publicised event a group of Christians in London staged a passion play which involved a cast of a thousand – many of whom have no religious affiliation. Maybe there's a lesson here - the spirit speaks through the truth of the story of Christ best when we allow it be free of baggage, free of religiosity. Less froth, more beer.

Substance

In other words, Pentecost needs to be expressed not just in emotions and joyous celebration (though they're vital too), but through the substance of the Christ event and through the substance of the lives of those who truly follow him. Nobody catches that better than the former Archbishop of Canterbury, Michael Ramsey: 'Where exciting gifts are seen, there is the Spirit. But where hard work is done with cheerful and unexciting perseverance, where sorrow and pain are borne with quiet fortitude ... here too is the Holy Spirit.'

What that means for the Church is, I guess, quite simple. It means being less concerned with survival than with salvation. It means to be more detached from the excess baggage which is costing us so dearly, and to travel light with the gospel alive in our very being. It means less recycling of the past and more living in the present, yet reaching out for God's fulfilment. It means that the church needs to do some dying as well as rising, and all this for the sake of a world, hungry for love.

It means less froth, more beer.

Church marriage after divorce?

NO: says David Winter

'As long as you both shall live' and 'till death us do part' are apparently set to remain the form of the vows taken at a church wedding service. I could never ask anyone to utter the same words 'in the presence of God', but with reference to a second partner. How can you make two vows before God which are mutually exclusive? In order to live faithfully with the second partner, vows relating to the first partner, for whatever reason, are now to be set aside. So what can one do? Altering the Church's rules (without rewording the marriage vows) cannot meet the case. It is not a question of 'guilt' or 'blame' but of the solemnity of the oath taken before God. Are we left helpless and uncaring when faced with a couple seeking to be married where one of them has been married before? I don't think so. It is not the minister's task to make judgments. We shall only end up in deeper trouble if we go down that road (the one proposed, it seems to me, by last year's Report). What we can do is to assure the couple that Christianity is a religion of forgiveness and new starts, and offer to accompany them on their journey into a second marriage. That should include a welcoming Service of Prayer and Blessing after their civil marriage, but without any repetition of lifelong vows before God. It is sufficient if the couple affirm in church their sincerity and promises that they have made to each other (the tense is important) and that the Church affirms God's support for them as they set out, yet again, on what is always a hazardous and demanding commitment.

David Winter writes regularly on page 20 Of The DOOR

YES: says Richard Thomas

We agree that the Christian vision for marriage is that it should be for life, and I have yet to take a wedding where I had any hint that the couple were not hoping for the fulfilment of this vision. But we live in a fallen world where, even with the best intentions, some relationships break down. If we recognise divorce, an implied part of the healing process is the recognition that vows taken in all seriousness, before God and his Church, should no longer be enforced. If we recognise that, how can we hold them over the heads of people whom God has forgiven, for ever making them 'second class' Christians in perhaps the most important area of their lives? Thank God we have a Gospel that offers forgiveness and a new start. Without that, I could not be a Christian, let alone a priest. Unless we demonstrate that Gospel in practical ways, our preaching will be perceived as hollow and harsh. What are we to say to Mary who has tried to make her marriage work, but whose partner has been violent, where the marriage has ended and she has now found someone who loves her and will care for her in marriage? Are we to hold her to vows taken in innocence that have been so brutally abused? I will treat each couple as unique. Provided all the sensible cautions are observed, I will gladly offer them a new start in marriage. My experience is that when this is offered at what is one of the deepest moments of hope in people's lives, it is the most redemptive and loving thing we can do. It has resulted in real Christian commitment for a number of couples for whom I have taken such weddings.

Letters to the editor

Banal liturgy, ministry to disabled, drugs problem, financial advice, turning to Judaism

Two cheers for banal liturgy! The front page of the May DOOR quoted the opinion that the language of Common Worship is 'quite banal'. The Oxford English Dictionary defines banal as 'open to the use of all the community'. The language of the New Testament is almost entirely that of ordinary, uneducated people, and if our new liturgy were truly banal I would say 'Halleluia!' But for those who like richness of language, there is still the peculiar use of words that mean something different from their common meaning. For example, in an idle moment someone will wonder why in a modern language prayer we would pray for the Pope's farm managers ('the good estate of the catholic Church') or wonder where else in modern English do we use the third person imperative ('To you be glory and praise for ever', 'The Lord be with you'). I am pleased that there are good, memorable turns of phrase in Common Worship. Examples such as 'the silent music of your praise', 'bursting from the tomb' and 'he opened wide his arms for us on the cross' are as likely to be retained in the memory as any of the best parts of the Book of Common Prayer.

Revd Phillip Nixon
Goring

Following David Hodgson's letter (May) it needs to be said that, for many years, concern has been expressed about the Church's ministry to people with learning disabilities (the mentally handicapped) and their carers. This has ranged from the World Council of Churches through dioceses and equivalent bodies to local churches. Some good reports and worship material have been produced and groups set up, but as far as I am aware nothing official is going on in our Diocese. (Incidentally, I see that the Roman Catholic Diocese of Northampton has a major conference on the subject this month.) It is worth noting that the Diocese of Southwark produced Travelling Together: Valuing People with Learning Disabilities, well worth the price of £6.

As far as carers are concerned, Carers International sets up local groups to give support, and there is also the country-wide Christian Carers Fellowship.

I want to encourage David in his efforts, but also to suggest that at diocesan level there is a need to co-ordinate all that is being done at various levels, not least in many parishes. Perhaps the Southwark model could serve as a basis.

Revd Michael Westney

'The drugs problem is our problem' (April) really encouraged me. I direct a Christian charity, Life for the World Trust, which has been working for over 30 years providing rehabilitation and care for drug and alcohol misusers and their families.

At times, I have despaired of the Church ever recognising that this is an issue we must address. Drug and alcohol misuse is a problem which has spiritual roots and requires responses that take this into account as well as dealing with its medical and social aspects. Over the past four years calls to our telephone help line in Wycombe have increased rapidly. We have had calls from clergy and Church members concerned with drug and alcohol misuse, within their own families or the congregation. In response, we have developed a number of resources for families and for churches including a leaflet for parents who suspect that a child has a drug problem and one for encouraging drug users to seek our help. There is a need for churches and Christian agencies to work in partnership, so that together we can combat this evil that is blighting more and more lives. We need the prayer and practical support of the Church. We can provide awareness seminars and training workshops for parents, pastoral and youth workers to equip congregations to understand drug issues from a spiritual perspective, so that they can care in Jesus' name. Contact us on 01494 462008, fax 446268.

In response to 'Your money and your life' (March), expert advice in financial matters is valuable and can help tremendously in developing a long-term strategy with a view to getting out of debt and onto a secure financial footing or, at the other extreme, to planning your investments for retirement. The Bible has a number of things to say about financial affairs, and it is good to combine the expertise of the world and the principles of the Bible when developing one's financial strategy.

There are a number of good publications available on the principles of handling money, how to deal with debt and how to run a house group on the subject. Credit Action (01223 324034) will happily provide you with a list. The Association of Christian Independent Financial Advisers (ACIFA) is a nationally organised association able to put you in touch with a local Christian financial adviser.

I read of our Bishop's suggestion that people who are monothestic but do not believe in the divinity of Jesus, and are therefore unable to find their spiritual home in the Christian Church, might like to try Judaism.

I am a church-going Christian but, like many others I know in the Church, I do not believe in the divinity of Jesus in the traditional, supernatural sense. I see him as a spiritual master whose 'divinity' lay in his fully realised humanity and his full communion with God. By working to identify profoundly with the Jesus portrayed in the Gospels I seek to follow Jesus' Way of Love and get closer to God. Such an understanding of Jesus' divinity is just part of an inspiring alternative expression of the Faith, consistent with contemporary thinking about human nature and the cosmos, which can be found in a range of books and experienced in fringe Christian organisations. Sadly, it is not purveyed by the mainstream churches so that the many people for whom such an expression would be deeply meaningful are denied the spiritual comfort and renewal it would bring. Instead they are made to feel unwanted in their spiritual home, and now it is being suggested that they turn to Judaism! Judaism is not an option for us: we seek to follow the Way of Christ with integrity.

What is needed is an opportunity for all Church people to be invited to share their faith and doubts honestly and fearlessly. People need to hear about the different ways in which their faith can be expressed so that they can find one to which they can assent with total integrity.

To celebrate Pentecost 2000 Christians all around the Oxford Diocese are preparing to welcome the Holy Spirit and mark the Church's birthday. From kite flying, picnics and dance to confirmations, baptisms or one of the country's biggest celebrations, the festivities will be hard to miss

The world flocks to a field in Bucks

Pentecost 2000 organised by Churches Together in Bucks and Milton Keynes, on Pentecost Sunday 11 June, is by far the biggest Pentecost event in the Oxford Diocese and probably in the whole country. BBC 4's Pentecost Sunday 'Songs of Praise' will be broadcast from the event.

At least 20,000 people are expected at the Bucks County Show Ground, Weedon Park near Aylesbury, for Pentecost 2000 which is being supported by 90 per cent of the Christian churches in the area. Many congregations are rescheduling their Sunday services in order to be there at noon for the grand opening by Kathy Staff, the Christian actress who plays the much loved Norah Batty in BBC's Last of the Summer Wine.

The central act of Pentecost 2000 will be the afternoon worship at 3.15pm, led by a thousand-strong choir with speakers and worship leaders from all the main Churches, including Fiona Castle. Pentecost Praise at 5.30pm will be led by the popular hymn writer and musician, Graham Kendrick. One aim of Pentecost 2000 is to give people the chance to learn more about the Five Marks of Mission adopted by many churches as their definition of mission in the 21st century. A line up of top speakers have been invited to take a theme and to present it twice in the presentation tent. The Bishop of Oxford speaking on Mark 3: 'To respond to human need by loving service' and Dr Elaine Storkey on Mark 2: 'To teach, baptise and nurture new believers'.

Throughout the day there will be a variety of events in the main arena and in 18 tents covering a range of subjects from conservation to music, drama and local heritage.

Young people will play an important part in the weekend. Veneration X on the Saturday evening will bring together some 3,000 15-25 year olds with three Christian bands and speakers. Many are staying overnight in tents so as to take part on Sunday morning. There will also be two children's tents and an international dress parade.

Pentecost 2000 has been planned for over three years. It aims to enable Christians to celebrate their faith together and to give an opportunity to the public to find out more about Christianity. Everyone is welcome. Bring your friends! Many tickets have been prebooked but you can buy a ticket at the gate for £5 (no charge for parking). Children under 14 are free. Tickets for Veneration X (£8 or £11 with breakfast and entry to Pentecost 2000) must be booked in advance on the hotline 01908 642120.

Fly a kite in Abingdon

The Church-in-Abingdon is advertising its Pentecost 2000 celebrations with kite flying sessions in parks in and around Abingdon during the three weeks leading up to Pentecost. It is hoped that the wind that carries a kite into the air will be a reminder of the Holy Spirit, the 'breath of God'. If you haven't got a kite you can learn to make your own, perhaps to a design representing Pentecost tongues of fire, at a kite-making session for people of all ages on Sunday, 4 June at 2.30pm in St Michael's church room. You can also get a kite pattern and materials from Beadle's ironmongery shop in Ock Street. There will be an all-night vigil on June 10 hosted by St Nicolas' Church followed on the morning of Sunday, June 11 by an open-air service of celebration at 11am in the Abbey grounds. Every church is cancelling its main morning service so that members can process with banners to the celebration in a huge act of witness. The two main processions will leave Christ Church and St Michael and All Angels and the service of celebration will be followed by a giant picnic, games and of course kite flying. For more details about the Pentecost celebrations ring Mgr Declan Lang VG on 01235 520375.

Ascot adopts fiery dress code

The Silver Ring at Ascot's famous race course could turn into a moving sea of Pentecost flames on 11 June if the thousands of Christians expected there for 'Spirit of 2000' respond to the invitation to wear bright red, yellow or orange. The event has been organised by Churches Together in Bracknell and Ascot. It starts at 11 am with 'Run the Race', a formal act of worship and ends with 'Praise and Press On', an informal celebration with the Bishop of Reading (3pm) . A picnic party will last all afternoon and there will be displays, exhibitions, stalls as well as clowns, games, and puppets children. The 'Eternity' youth group, choirs and drama groups will provide continuous performances on stage. People will be encouraged to express their hopes and dreams for the new millennium by writing prayer requests. These will be attached to balloons which will be released in a spectacular cloud of colour during the final act of worship. 'Spirit of 2000 is an unashamedly Christian event but one to which all the local community are invited' according to their excellent website which also gives full programme details: www.Spirit-of-2000.org .

Together with God in Reading

One of Reading's biggest ever birthday parties will take place on 11 June, when Christians from ten churches in the Earley and East Reading area converge on the Loddon Valley Leisure Centre for 'Together with God', an all-age millennium celebration for the Church's birthday. The programme starts at 11.30am. It includes a special all-age act of worship, a praise party for the under-tens and their parents and the alternative comedian, Jon Archer. There will also be a chance to find out more about the Reading churches' millennium project to fund a new home for Christian Community Action. Christians will gather at Chalfont Park and walk together to the Leisure Centre.

For further information ring Kay Dickinson on 0118 9318115 (day) or 0118 926 1878 (evenings) .

Dove lands on millennium green

The sculpture will be dedicated by local clergy during a Millennium Green community festival on 10 June. It starts at 1.30pm with a procession led by the Gazebo Band. Children from Kidmore End Church of England School are among the young people taking part in a pageant tracing the Christian history of Britain. There will also be tours of the new green which provides a restful recreational open space for residents of all ages. Entrance is free. For further details ring Ian Munro on 0118 972 4382.

At 1pm there will be a picnic in Garth Park with games for children incorporating the Pentecost theme and at 2pm an ecumenical Songs of Praise with music from the park bandstand. Leading up to Pentecost St Edberg's is hosting an exhibition(20-29 May) about the different Christian denominations and, on 26 May at 7.30pm, a perfomance by singer, priest and song writer, Garth Hewitt. Education Review - June 2000

SCHOOL PROBLEMS?

Do you know someone who would feel better with improved reading, writing or spelling skills or whose head fills with fog when Maths is mentioned?
Or someone who dreads exams, can't get assignments or even themselves organised; maybe feels their work is just not good enough?
Or maybe has been ill; needs to get over having been bullied, or simply worries about school?
Or perhaps gets angry, creates disruption, is always in trouble? These things can change.
School can be problematic. At four, off they go, ready or not. They cope with tests, try for a set standard, transfer to Secondary School, and then there are new subjects to master, different exams to manage, vast members of people to cope with, homework too.
Then options, choices for GCSE's, decisions for the future, coping with growing up. Panic not. Help is at hand.
Many children need support at some time, in some way for managing anxiety, anger, distress or pressure.
BREAKTHROUGH provides therapy which enables young people to find new ways of coping and they do not have to explain anything at all, do not have to discuss distress.
It works in abstract, creating permanent change in mental states, moving from negative to positive.
Body chemistry changes from stressed to relaxed.
In finding their own best solutions many young people, experiencing therapy, feel better, produce better work, improve in confidence and self-esteem and change for good.

Tenovus Millennium Appeal

Advertisement Feature

Research into cures for cancer costs millions of pounds. Significant progress has been made in recent years, and Tenovus research projects are on the verge of major breakthroughs in treatment and prevention of cancer. Can you help us by making a donation towards our research?

Faslodex

Tenovus researchers are developing a new drug, Faslodex, which helps stop breast and prostate cancers from spreading through the body. Work on Faslodex is now reaching its most exciting period, with hopes that it should be available to patients in the very near future.

Breast Cancer Research

Our scientists have discovered the single gene, out of the 100,000 genes contained in each cell, which appears to be responsible for promoting the spread of breast cancer. Armed with Tamoxifen and shortly with Faslodex, our doctors are now able to 'switch-off' this unwanted gene.

Growth Factors

Our doctors are investigating the growth of breast and prostate cancer cells, as there appears to be a link between growth factors (proteins) and the hormones that make up the cancer cell. Using anti-oestrogen drugs such as Tamoxifen, doctors can now in certain cases prevent cells turning cancerous.

Genetic Research

Tenovus researchers are at the forefront of work in genetics and cancer, working to try and identify more of the genes that are involved in the development of cancer and to help the development of information and education both for the public and for the general practitioners.

Immunisation

Our research teams are examining the ways in which the body's immune system can be 'taught' to recognise and eradicate cancer. Cancer, through giving patients anti-cancer antibodies, and using anti-cancer vaccines.

The Prayer Diary is for everyone

Those close to the centre of the Diocese may be more appreciative of the Diocesan Prayer Diary than those who are further afield who may feel that it is too impersonal. However, I am sure that everyone is pleased to know that their church and deanery is prayed for once a year!

The Diary also includes prayers for what is going on in deaneries and for those working hard at Church House on our behalf. Members of Boards and Councils of the Synod are also prayed for on a regular basis. But, I can hear someone say: what about those working just as hard in secular employment who also need our prayers? Not only doctors and nurses and teachers, but those who, in more ordinary jobs, build up our common life and are indispensable to our national economy?

Starting this month and with the help of the Revd Hugh Lee, our Work and Economic Life Missioner, we aim to make the Diary more user friendly. It will also remind those who lead intercessions on Sunday worship about those in secular employment.

In his letter to the church in Corinth St Paul says he writes as a fool, as he records what he has suffered for the Gospel, and he adds: 'apart from these external things is the responsibility that weighs on me every day. My anxious concern for all the Churches'. At the end of his letters he invariably shows his appreciation by naming those people who shared his ministry (Chapter 16 of Romans is full of them) – people on whom he depended under God, to build the Church. Our prayers too, will reflect how much we also care for those who do the same today.

CHOOSING A CARE HOME?

Advertisement Feature

Choosing* a care home is like choosing a new house - but with the neighbours living in. Importantly it has to feel right for the resident and provide everything to suit the personality involved, especially when attempting to choose for someone else. here are some important questions to ask:

Residential or Nursing?
Some 'non-nursing' homes can cope with less serious conditions. Some are dual-registered. Do you require the reassurance of qualified nursing care available round the clock?

Personal Details
Any disabilities? Special needs? Perhaps some chronic conditions? Allergies/aversions? Any problem with speaking, reading, writing, English? People from foreign countries can feel especially isolated. Maybe there is a home with others of the same ethnic origin or visits can be arranged from Church or Community groups.

Individual Preferences
Home or away? Many people have the dream to retire to the seaside or somewhere with a slower, more countrified lifestyle. This kind of move needs more research and more effort from everybody. Remember, too, that resorts experienced for a fortnight every year may be less idyllic in midwinter or high summer. If you later become less mobile, then you may well wish that you should have stayed nearer the family.
Do you prefer to keep your own doctor? If this is of primary importance, you should look for a home within his/her practice area. An established relationship with your own GP can be a comfort if health problems should develop. Near to shops, park, pub, social club? On bus route? If you can keep up contacts in the outside world, the transition can be almost seamless. Food. At set times or flexible? Possibility to make your own tea, snacks? Fixed rising/bedtimes or flexible? Single-sex or mixed? Like to help with chores?
How to be addressed? Mr/Mrs/first name? If you dislike a particular form of address, make your wishes known from the start. Private room, with your own things around you or happy to share?
Special interests? Playing chess, birdwatching, photography, knitting, patchwork. Shared interests with other residents can make home life most enjoyable.
Special talents? Play the piano? Do conjuring tricks? These talents can be accommodated and welcomed. Maybe too, you have an interesting and inspiring history. This is the perfect time and place to work on the memoirs.

Family Preferences
Handy for family visits? If children, grandchildren and friends can just 'drop in', it is obviously nicer than formal visits. On bus/train route/with parking? Is there somewhere to stay nearby? If they've chosen to retire to the countryside, is there a hotel, guest-house or caravan site nearby for your visits?

Take Time
What is vitally important is time. Many people are forced into making decisions at the last minute which can only reduce the choice of care homes with vacancies. So try to think months ahead of the situation rather than weeks.

FAST FACTS
- Most residential and nursing homes in the UK are independent
- Most residents in care homes have their fees (or part fees) paid by the local authority
- 40,000 homes have to be sold every year to meet care costs.
- The average lifespan of a man is 78 years and a woman 82 years.
- Anyone with assets less than £16,000 can be helped with care costs
- 1 in 3 women and 1 in 5 men will require nursing care

Who'll be sleeping on this Ad tonight?

How would you like to spend the night sleeping on this Ad? Thousands of homeless people do precisely that.
There are reasons for each person, many are mentally ill. Others have alcohol or drug problems. Some simply cannot cope.
There are no set rules to being homeless.
That's where The Passage can help. The Passage is more than a Day Centre. It's home for hundreds of 'roofless' people each day.
We give them food, clothing and a shower. We can offer them Help, Advice, Counselling, Medical Care plus a Job Club are just some of the services preparing the way for our resettlement work.
Yet, we have to rely on your help to continue.
Every homeless person we help costs an average of £5 each day. With many hundreds in our care, it's a thought worth sleeping on.
Please be generous, send your donation to: Sr Bridie Dowd DC, The Passage, Department DO 03/2000, St Vincent's, Carlisle Place, London SW1P 1NL.

Please send me more information about The Passage ☐

A Question of Caring

CF Banner Real Life Unit Trust & JSA fund grows to over £3 million

Advertisement Feature

Over the past two years ethical investment funds have grown from £1.7bn in January 2000. This demonstrates the increasing interest in socially Responsible Investment funds.

Many ethical investment funds focus on the invironment, the planet, etc., and whilst these aims are commendable Banner believes the focus should be on the sanctity of human life and the importance of marriage and the family. In the summer of 1998 Banner Financial Services, based in Sussex, launched the first pro-life unit trust. In addition to the pro-life criteria care for the environment and animal welfare is also covered.

Fleur Leach, Lead Fund Manager with Capel Cure Sharp is the investment manager of the fund. CCS benefits from an outstanding research division, having access to external research from a variety of leading investment houses and other sources.

Principles do not need to be sacrificed to achieve competitive results. The fund has produced a top quartile performance over the past 12 months and 52% growth since launch in September 1998 to the end of April 2000.

A Council of References contributes an invaluable resource in proving a forum for evaluating the eligibility of stocks and the development of the unit trust. The Council of Reference is chaired by Professor the Lord Alton of Liverpool and has representation from LIFE, SPUC together with other leading experts in the field of pro-life issues and ethical concerns.

At least 0.2% of the fund is shared between two or more pro-life organisations. The first distribution of the funds has taken place and this is an ongoing commitment to pro-active organisations in agreement with the aims of the fund.

Banner's Real Life approach to ethical investment is a brave and exciting initiative. It extends the debate about 'what is ethical',

Thomas 8 and Maurice 3 are attractive and engaging children. Both have had difficult early experiences but have thrived in foster care.

Thomas is chatty and inquisitive. He loves adult attention. His development is delayed and he behaves like a child a few years younger.

He has been assessed for Special Educational needs.

Maurice is cheerful and affectionate. He continues to progress in his foster home.

The boys are of white parentage and need a two-parent, white adoptive family. They would benefit from a family who has experience of children's numerous interests and a great deal of time and energy. They have missed out on play activities and need opportunities to catch up. They are both subjects of a Care Order. An adoption allowance may be available for Thomas.

If you are interested in Maurice and Thomas please ring Margaret McAweaney at Wandsworth Social Services.

CHRISTIAN ARTISTS FLOCK TO GLASTONBURY

Advertisement Feature

Hearts on Fire - Glastonbury's Christian arts festival - is back this year and promises to be bigger and better than ever.

A selection of high calibre artists are to appear at the event, set to take place in the Abbey grounds from 14-16 July. the main line-up includes Cliff Richard, Rick Wakerman, Graham Kendrick, Noel Tredinnick with the All Souls Orchestra, Paul Field and Dave Bilbrough.

This one will be one of Sir Cliff's few public singing appearances during the next 12 months, which have been declared a sabbatical year. He has said: "To be celebrating 2000 years since the time of Jesus is special in itself, to do so at a place with such significant links to the earliest believers in this country is all the more exciting."

Cliff launched the first such Christian festival at a marquee in the town in 1993. Gaining popularity and momentum, Hearts on Fire became a registered charity and also a company three years later.

Festival Director Rick Hillard and his wife Helen have lived in and around Glastonbury for much of their married life. Their current family home overlooks the original Holy Thorn tree, said to have sprouted from the staff of Joseph of Arimathea.

With a team of artists, the couple plan to go into education centres on the first day of Hearts on Fire - reaching youngsters with the gospel message. "More than 20 local schools have already said 'yes' to this," reports Rick Hillard.

He is currently looking for funding so children can learn more about their Christian heritage. Anyone offering sponsorship should call 01458 834473.

This is a part of Somerset steeped in history. Legend says Glastonbury Abbey occupies the site of England's first Christian church, where Joseph's son was Bishop. It is therefore a particularly important spot where Jesus Christ should be celebrated in the Millennium year. Hearts on Fire provides the ideal opportunity to do this.

Information leaflets are available from the Abbey Entrance, local Tourist Information Centres and Clarks Village. Booking by post only to: Hearts on Fire 2000, PO Box 79, Hatfield AL9 7ZW. Call the Helpline on 01454 319447.

Time of your life

Bracing up for YB2000 adventure

YELLOW BRACES, the annual Diocesan youth camp, promises to be better than ever for the millennium year. From the 7 to 9 July up to 75 young people between the ages of 11 and 16 will gather at Hill End residential centre at Farmoor near Oxford for a YB2000 weekend of games, craft, worship and adventure.

'Adventure Plus' have been asked to lead activities such as archery, canoeing and climbing. They are a professional Christian outdoor activity organisation based in the Diocese who provide qualified and expert instructors.

This year's theme is what it means to follow Jesus in the new millennium. Youth workers, Tim Vinall and Yvonne Morris from St Matthew's Oxford, will head an investigation into the greatness of God and why more and more people are getting fired up about Him 'even if they think church is boring'. Richard Vicary and others from the Eternity Youth Group will lead the worship.

The weekend cost, including food and activities, is £35 (reduced rates for two or more family members). Those who come must be in school years 7 - 11. There are only 76 places so ring Andrew Gear now on 01865 208253.

Mark the millennium in Taizé

SO SUCCESSFUL was last year's Diocesan pilgrimage to Taizé for young adults that Bishop Dominic Walker will be leading another pilgrimage there this year. He is particularly interested in helping young people to explore issues around prayer and what it means to live the Christian life as a young person in Britain today. Bishop Dominic will be assisted by Richard Hancock and Sheila Nunn both of whom know Taizé well. Richard actually lived in the community for a time.

The pilgrims will leave on Saturday 19 August arriving in Taizé the next morning. They will be back on Monday 28 August.

'Taize was an important part of my spiritual journey and encouraged me to step into the unknown with the knowledge that God has a plan for my life', said one of last year's young pilgrims.

The cost is £165 inclusive but some bursaries are available. Ring Andrew Gear on 01865 208253.

Summer crumble

by cookery writer Ann Way

When our children were young, we spent summer holidays in my parents' second home by a remote loch in the Highlands of Scotland. The cottage was called the Sheiling which meant 'shepherd's house'. It was an idyllic place – no electricity, just calor gas, and our water was pumped from the burn that ran down the hillside. The grass was mowed regularly by the sheep, deer and rabbits but fortunately they left the gooseberries, raspberries and blackcurrants for us to harvest. One of our favourite 'easy' puddings was a fruit crumble that became a star feature of that lovely place.

You will need

500gm / 1 lb mixed summer fruit (e.g. gooseberries, blackcurrants, raspberries, strawberries)
1 1/2 heaped teaspoons caster sugar
150ml / 1/4 pint water
1 level teaspoon cornflour mixed with a little water taken from the 150ml / 1/4 pint

crumble topping

75gm / 3oz margarine
200 gm / 8oz SR flour
75gm / 3oz sugar (granulated or demerara)
finely grated zest of lemon

Method

Top and tail gooseberries and destalk blackcurrants. Cut up strawberries and pick over raspberries. Simmer in a largish saucepan the gooseberries and blackcurrants in water until they soften. Add the rest of the fruit and the cornflour and bring to the boil and cook gently until juices thicken. Pour fruit mixture into an ovenproof dish.

For the crumble topping melt the margarine over a low heat. Stir in the sugar and the flour with grated lemon rind and mix until it resembles bread crumbs. Sprinkle this evenly on top of the fruit mixture and cook in a medium oven for about 30 minutes until top is golden and crisp.

Serve with custard or cream.

Books for Pentecost

reviewed by Ann Knight

'The grace of the Lord Jesus Christ and the love of God, and the fellowship of the Holy Spirit be with you all' (2 Corinthians 13, 14). How easily these words trip off the tongue with familiarity! In John 14:15-17 Jesus promises the Holy Spirit: 'I will ask the Father, and He will give you another counsellor to be with you for ever, the Spirit of truth.' This promise came true at the Jewish feast of Pentecost six weeks after Jesus returned to heaven. The Spirit came to the disciples, and 2,000 years on his Counsellor is still being sent to those who love the Lord. Below are a selection of books about the Holy Spirit which I hope will inspire you to take a fresh look at the effect of the Holy Spirit in your life and the life of the Church this Pentecost.

The Wild Spirit Russ Parker, Triangle, £6.99

A challenging book for the individual wanting to know more of the Holy Spirit, with prayers and questions for reflection. Russ Parker has written for Anglican Renewal magazine for many years. In a time when so many of us love to embark on adventure and holiday in unknown places this book will invite you to go on a journey with God's Spirit guiding you in the adventure of life, encouraging us to let go of inhibitions and trust in God. How will his Spirit shape our lives?

Come Holy Spirit A practical handbook for church leaders today David Pytches, Hodder and Stoughton £5.99

This is a well researched handbook in which the author speaks from his own experiences of the way the Spirit works through the Church, encouraging us to see the Spirit at work and covering the different spiritual gifts which are backed up by biblical background and understanding.

Journey of the Spirit Mary Batchelor, Lion £7.99

A beautiful book for a personal reflection on the Christian faith, with each chapter containing Bible signposts to help direct the reader's thoughts on life's journey. It includes space for your own personal thoughts. There is information about Christian belief with insights into the experiences of others exploring the different facets of Christianity.

His Spirit is with Us Chris Neal, BRF £5.99

An excellent study and easy to read, this biblically based book looks at the work and power of the Holy Spirit in the Old and New Testament. Six weekly themes are set out for daily use, with pauses for thought, reflection, prayer and further reading, concluding each week with material suitable for group study.

Nine O'Clock In The Morning and The Holy Spirit and You Dennis and Rita Bennett, Kingsway £6.99

There are two books in one volume. Nine O'Clock In The Morning is a story of how the pastor of a 2,500 congregation risked the unity of his church because he became involved with the baptism of the Holy Spirit and speaking in tongues, showing God's Spirit is alive now as it was 2,000 years ago at Pentecost. The Holy Spirit and You gives guidelines on how the spiritual gifts can be allowed to develop in our personal lives.

Ann Knight attends St Mary's, Thame and helps run the Christian Resource Centre at the church. The books mentioned can be obtained there or at your local bookshop.

The Salutation: four Christian artists combine in Oxford Pentecost exhibition

Detail of Roger Wagner's Ruth and Boaz, set in modern Syria.

In response to Thomas Traherne's poem 'The Salutation', four of the country's leading Christian artists are mounting an exhibition of their recent work at St Andrew's church, Linton Road, Oxford, celebrating the joys of God's creation.

This is the first time that the artists – Mark Cazalet, Richard Kenton Webb, Nicholas Mynheer and Roger Wagner – have collaborated in their own exhibition, and the event marks the climax if the church's celebrations of the millennium at Pentecost.

There are fascinating contrasts in the ways in which the artists interpret their chosen theme. Richard Kenton Webb's work is entirely abstract. He contributes a set of six six-foot rectangular panels entitled 'The Time of Preparation', which is complemented by music specially composed by Scottish composer Helen Graham. Visitors to the exhibition can also watch a video of the work being created.

Oxford-based artist Roger Wagner, on the other hand, stands firmly in the figurative tradition following on from his well-known representation of the crucifixion against the background of Didcot power station. He continues to embed biblical scenes in the here and now. His 'Ruth and Boaz' (detail, left) is the first part of a triptych, against a contemporary Syrian landscape. The characters are set in a finely observed harvest scene complete with disused oil drums and an old rubber tyre.

Nicholas Mynheer, whose studio is at Horton-cum-Studley, contributes sculptures (his Mother and Child is pictured right), among them a delightfully humorous portrayal of Jonah and the whale, in which the prophet is in the process of being swallowed – or perhaps spewed out – by the fish. Humour also figures in some of the work of Mark Cazalet. His 'problem paintings' were done in response to questions raised by his daily Bible readings, and include an appealing study of Balaam's ass, reflecting the dilemma posed by wanting to run away.

In the words of Roger Wagner, there is something below the surface linking these very different exhibits: 'My hope is that people will be led to reflect on what that might be.'

Great army of laymen raised up by God

Most people would not accept the validity of a statement in the Foreword and be sceptical about a prophecy in the Preface to this excellent book. Val Fotherby's husband David is stated to have participated in what are described as some of 'the greatest events in Christianity since the first century'. The prophecy by Dr Charles Price, made more than 50 years ago, was that a great army of laymen would be raised up by God in the last days to bring in the final harvest of his kingdom. After reading this book in record time for me – it is a very good read – I could see what the writers of the Foreword and Preface were getting at.

This book tells the story of the miraculous growth of the Full Gospel Business Men's Fellowship International over four decades. The FGBMFI is a fellowship of Christian laymen from all denominations who meet over a meal in a hotel to share with other men, and women, how their Christian faith affects their everyday life at home, in society and at work. The FGBMFI is not a church, but is a supporting arm of the established churches. Its aims include bringing more men into the Church, and bringing about a greater measure of unity among all Christians.

From its founding vision to Demos Shakarian of laymen being awakened throughout the world, the FGBMFI has spread through the USA, South America, UK, Japan, Australia, New Zealand and the former communist countries. Most recently, it has reached Africa and Central America. There are about 180 groups in the UK and Ireland and over 4,000 throughout the world. From politicians to street beggars, the FGBMFI has had an impact on many thousands of lives at breakfast, lunch and dinner meetings. The book movingly recounts the dramatic testimonies of these men and women. Throughout the world these meetings have witnessed the power of Jesus Christ healing bodies, minds, emotions, spirits, families and businesses. A lesson for us to take on board today is that when we fast and pray we see God move in amazing ways.

Jesus Christ calls us to be fishers of people. If you need inspiration to be such a fisherman/woman then this book is for you. Men and women have been encouraged to form 'fire teams', small groups to go out and give testimony of God's powerful love in their lives and then to minister in the power of the Holy Spirit.

Kimberley & Kuruman

A look at our link Diocese

DURING THE SECOND five years of the Oxford Diocese's link with Kimberley and Kuruman, it is hoped that the two cathedrals will come closer together. Yet they could not be more different. Tom Tower provides the gateway from the main road, St Aldate's, into Christ Church, and across the quadrangle lies the college chapel which is also the cathedral. St Cyprian's is also adjoining one of Kimberley's main thoroughfares, Du Toitspan Road, but this time one is drawn to it across a green lawn by the statue of Sister Henrietta Stockdale. A nursing nun, she was the frst matron of Kimberley's new hospital as well as being the person who secured legal recognition for professional nurses.

Whilst Christ Church was established as a cathedral church in 1546, St Cyprian's was consecrated in 1908. It has the largest nave in the country. On the same site are the diocesan and bishop's offices together with welcome and meeting facilities. Again, it reflects different needs and opportunities. Christ Church has a dual role as a cathedral in the centre of a diocese as well as a college chapel. Kimberley is physically at the eastern edge of a diocese one and a half times the area of Britain and also has an important part to play in the centre of a city which has undergone enormous economic and social change since 1994. Both have 'outside' responsibilities: Christ Church is patron to a number of parishes throughout the country, and the staff at St Cyprian's have care of a number of small parishes and outstations especially to the south of the city.

So the resources of and demands on of these two cathedrals are very different. As part of his research, the Very Revd Bob Jeffery, Sub-Dean of Christ Church, will be visiting a number of Anglican cathedrals throughout the world in order to observe the changing roles, responsibilities and staffing of cathedrals. After three months of travelling, his final visit (in early August) will be to Kimberley. As with all of his journey and meetings we pray that he will 'go well'.

Nicholas Molony

IT WAS MEETING K & K's Diocesan Secretary, Canon Ossie Swartz, in Blackbird Leys that led Sarah Miller to spend two years as a lay assistant at St Cyprian's Cathedral, Kimberley in 1996, as part of the Oxford Diocesan educational and training team. She was a parish assistant in Blackbird Leys and project worker at the Porch Drop-in Centre, and had previously taught in High Wycombe. She has recently started working for the United Society for the Propagation of the Gospel in four dioceses – Chelmsford, Ely, Norwich and St Edmundsbury and Ipswich – while training part-time for the ordained ministry.

The Church for a new millennium

We are being encouraged to take initiatives in evangelisation in the new millennium. What does it mean in practice? We start a series in which we look at churches all over the Diocese to see what they are doing

Do we want to grow, spiritually and numerically? This is the first question a church needs to ask if it is going to take the process of evangelisation seriously. Growth involves change, and change is painful. Sights have to be set higher than 'doing what we did last year and hoping for the best'; this takes a long time and patient work.

'Mission statement'

One way of facilitating it is to have a parish or PCC awayday (top right) and look at where you are, the needs of the community, and your vision for the future. Out of this could come a parish mission statement and a one-, two- or three-year strategy with some targets. These will build on existing structures, groups and activities, but see them as 'stepping stones' to encourage people to become part of the church family, and the church family to engage with the wider community.

Our 'statement of purpose' is: 'The Parish Church of St Peter & St Paul exists to Worship God (Worship), Follow his way as shown by Jesus (Discipleship), Make known his love to others (Outreach).' Based on this we have developed 'Task Groups' responsible to the PCC: Worship, Mission and Outreach, Youth, Finance, Building and Maintenance, Pastoral Care. Our priorities for 2000/2001 include:

- Worship: introduce Common Worship, train lay people to lead worship;
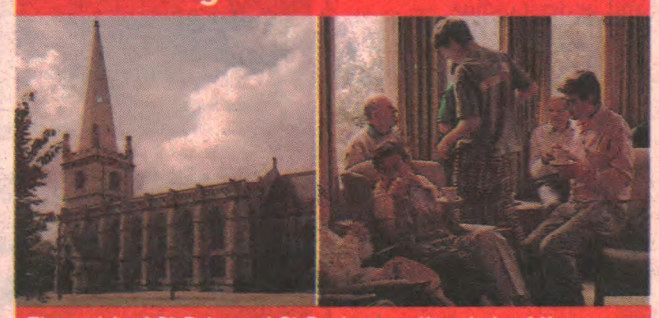
- Discipleship: set up marriage preparation course, extend parenting course, develop bereavement visiting, identify and train more youth leaders;
- Outreach: building redevelopment, another Alpha course, outreach to 20/30s.

Buckingham Parish Church



The parish of St Peter and St Paul covers the whole of the market town of Buckingham, which is expanding (c.12,000 people) but retains its character and sense of identity. In the town are five schools, the private University of Buckingham and some light industry. There are just under 200 on the church electoral roll and about 400 on the 'family' roll. The main Sunday service is 10am Parish Communion with a Family Service once a month.

Some current initiatives

- Regular social events to bring the church family together and introduce newcomers
- A welcome team, who can double as sidespeople, to help identify and meet newcomers
- Monthly Men's Breakfasts
- Scheme of 'baptism hosts' to make and maintain contact with families
- Lay-led enquirers' groups and Alpha follow-up groups based on Emmaus material

Community needs

We must shape our agendas to reflect community needs; our community will then take us seriously. We have begun to do this through:

- special services for key sections, e.g. business world, schools, sporting groups
- a broadsheet which goes to every house and tries to reflect local issues as well as church activities
- our 'Open Door Project' (see box).

We can make an impact by 'being good news and living the good news' (Robert Warren's words) as a community of people who have a distinctive life, centred on God in worship and prayer, warm and welcoming, and open to new ways of doing things. Our prayer is that this may become true for every church community in our Diocese.

Canon David Meara, Rector

The annual Holiday Club has been growing and now attracts about 250 children aged 14 and under. There are also regular children's and young people's groups, and a midweek Toddler Church.

The Open Door Project

A building full of life, open to the wider community, offering drop-in facilities, peace and a place for meeting and friendship: this is the vision behind the 'Open Door' redevelopment project launched at a parish Open Day at Easter. It involves:

- Redesign of the west end to include a kitchen, meeting rooms, parish office, quiet room and disabled facilities
- Appointment of a project worker to run the office, be a welcoming presence and make links with local people who might use the building

Not a 'stuffy lot!'

'I was an atheist and couldn't see the point of church. That's why we got married in a Registry Office. We both worked full-time and didn't really know many people in Buckingham, but were encouraged to come to St Peter's and St Paul's by a friend. They weren't anything like the stuffy lot I expected! I used to think people only went to church to get ready to die, but there are lots of young people like us there. There's a real sense of community, too. It's really good at the Family Service ... things are explained in an easy-to-understand way.'

These words of Claire are quoted in one of the broadsheets which go to every house. Claire now helps with the youth group and she and Tom have brought their son for baptism.

Life's a lottery!

Did you know that statistically you are more likely to die between buying a lottery ticket and the draw being made than actually winning the lottery? Makes you think, doesn't it?

From the Buckingham Church web site: http://users.powernet.co.uk/rex/bpc.html. It includes forthcoming events and links with other Christian web sites and with the town site.

THOUGHT FOR THE MONTH

Power Restored

'You will receive power when the Holy Spirit has come upon you' Acts 1:8

Those who are old enough to remember the power cuts of the miners' strike period in the 1970s will probably also remember the amazing sensation of the power being restored. For younger readers, and those with poor memories, these power cuts involved what were called 'phased disconnections' of power supplies, so that you knew that the electricity would go off at, say, six o'clock and come back on at half past nine. But it was still a surprise when the gloomy room was suddenly flooded with light and the dead and silent television screen burst into life. Power had been restored!

Pentecost is all about 'power' – not 'authority' or 'dominion' (senses in which the Bible also talks of 'power'), but the ability to get things done. The Greek word used here by Luke has the same root as our English word 'dynamic'. What was promised to the disciples, who had already been given the 'authority' of Jesus to preach the good news to the whole world (Matthew 24: 18,19), was the means to do it, the energising 'power' of the Holy Sprit.

There's not much doubt that church life, and our witness to the world of the love and grace of Jesus, sometimes seems to be carried on in the dark. We know (very often) what we ought to do, but somehow we lack the inner motivation and energy to do it. Trying to meet those needs from human resources is doomed to failure, because what we are engaged in is a spiritual exercise, and for that spiritual resources are needed. Those resources are in the gift of God and are to be found only in the Holy Spirit.

'You will receive power ...' was a promise spectacularly fillfilled in the apostolic Church, but it is a promise that still holds good for us today.

Canon David Winter, who is retired and living near Oxford, is the Editor of the New Daylight notes of the Bible Reading Fellowship
